Thumb arthritis

Thumb arthritis is common as people get older and happens when the cartilage at the base of thumb, known as the carpometacarpal (CMC) joint, wears down. This can cause severe pain, swelling, and a decrease in strength and range of motion, making it hard to do simple tasks like turning doorknobs and opening jars.

Introducing our groundbreaking solution for thumb arthritis pain – Zero-Cast Tx. This innovative design realigns the thumb joint, significantly reducing pain and providing increased stability.
